Brrrrr!

Baby,
brrrrr!

By ALISON ALOISIO

Bethel area residents, like their neighbors across northern New England, woke up to howling winds and temperatures of 20 below zero Wednesday morning.

The cold took its toll on some automobiles and water pipes, but for the most part folks appear to have shrugged the weather off and went on with their daily routines.

Some school districts called off school because of the cold, but SAD44 school buses for the most part rolled uneventfully, delivering children safely to their schools. After-school sports, however, were called off.

Automotive road service was as brisk as the weather. Gaudreau's Repair in Bethel had two trucks on the road, dealing with "as much as we can handle and then some," said dispatcher Julie Kimball. Many of the calls were jump-start visitors to Sunday River Ski Resort.

Fuel oil deliverymen were also out there. At Brooks Bros., Inc., in Bethel they worked overtime to make oil deliveries, according to Jeri Brooks Greenwell.

"Some people are getting low, and some are panicking and calling in," she said, but the deliveries are keeping pace for the most part.

There have been a few cases of frozen pipes, Greenwell said, but people needing heat had a higher priority.

She's asking customers to be patient as Brooks Bros. works through its list.

Town manager cites lack of response during armed robbery at Big Apple

By MICHAEL DANIELS

For the second time in less than a year, Bethel Police Chief Darren Tripp is facing "serious disciplinary action."

In March of last year, Tripp was suspended, with pay, by Town Manager Scott Cole.

Tripp was reinstated 33 days later, and is currently suing the town to recover his legal fees in the affair, as well as up to $250,000 in damages for physical and emotional suffering.

The latest incident stems from a Dec. 2 armed robbery at the Big Apple store on Railroad Street.

In a letter informing Tripp of the possible disciplinary action, Cole says that county dispatch was unable to contact Tripp — the officer on duty at the time — for a crucial 12-minute period after the robbery was called in.

The town manager gave Tripp until Jan. 16 to reply in writing.

Cole's letter was dated Jan. 5, the same day that the town released extensive material that had been filed in Tripp's federal lawsuit against the town.

The material, which became public record when it was filed by Tripp's attorney at Federal District Court in Portland, was handed out by Cole at a selectmen's meeting that evening.

Albany campowner fined for building, clearing violations

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A South Carolina man has agreed to pay a $3,000 fine and perform a number of mediation actions for constructing a building too close to a stream in Albany Township, digging an unpermitted privy pit and clearing groundcover and canopy.

The settlement was ratified Wednesday by the board of the Maine Land Use Regulation Commission.

According to LURC, in 1988 William R. DiGiovanni Jr. constructed a 16-by-16 foot seasonal camp on a full foundation, with one edge of the foundation 68 feet from an unnamed stream.

LURC regulations require a minimum setback of 75 feet from streams (such as the one involved here) that drain less than 50 square miles.

In addition, DiGiovanni constructed a storage shed within 20 feet of the stream and an 8-by-8 foot deck within 75 feet, according to the LURC report.

DiGiovanni also installed the pit privy without a plumbing permit or permit from the commission, and he accumulated numerous auto parts, unregistered vehicles and other trash and debris.

He also cleared groundcover on both sides of the stream and cut two canopy openings, totaling 2,300 square feet.

Upon being notified of the violations, DiGiovanni removed the vehicles and other debris and applied for an after-the-fact approval of the camp in its current location.

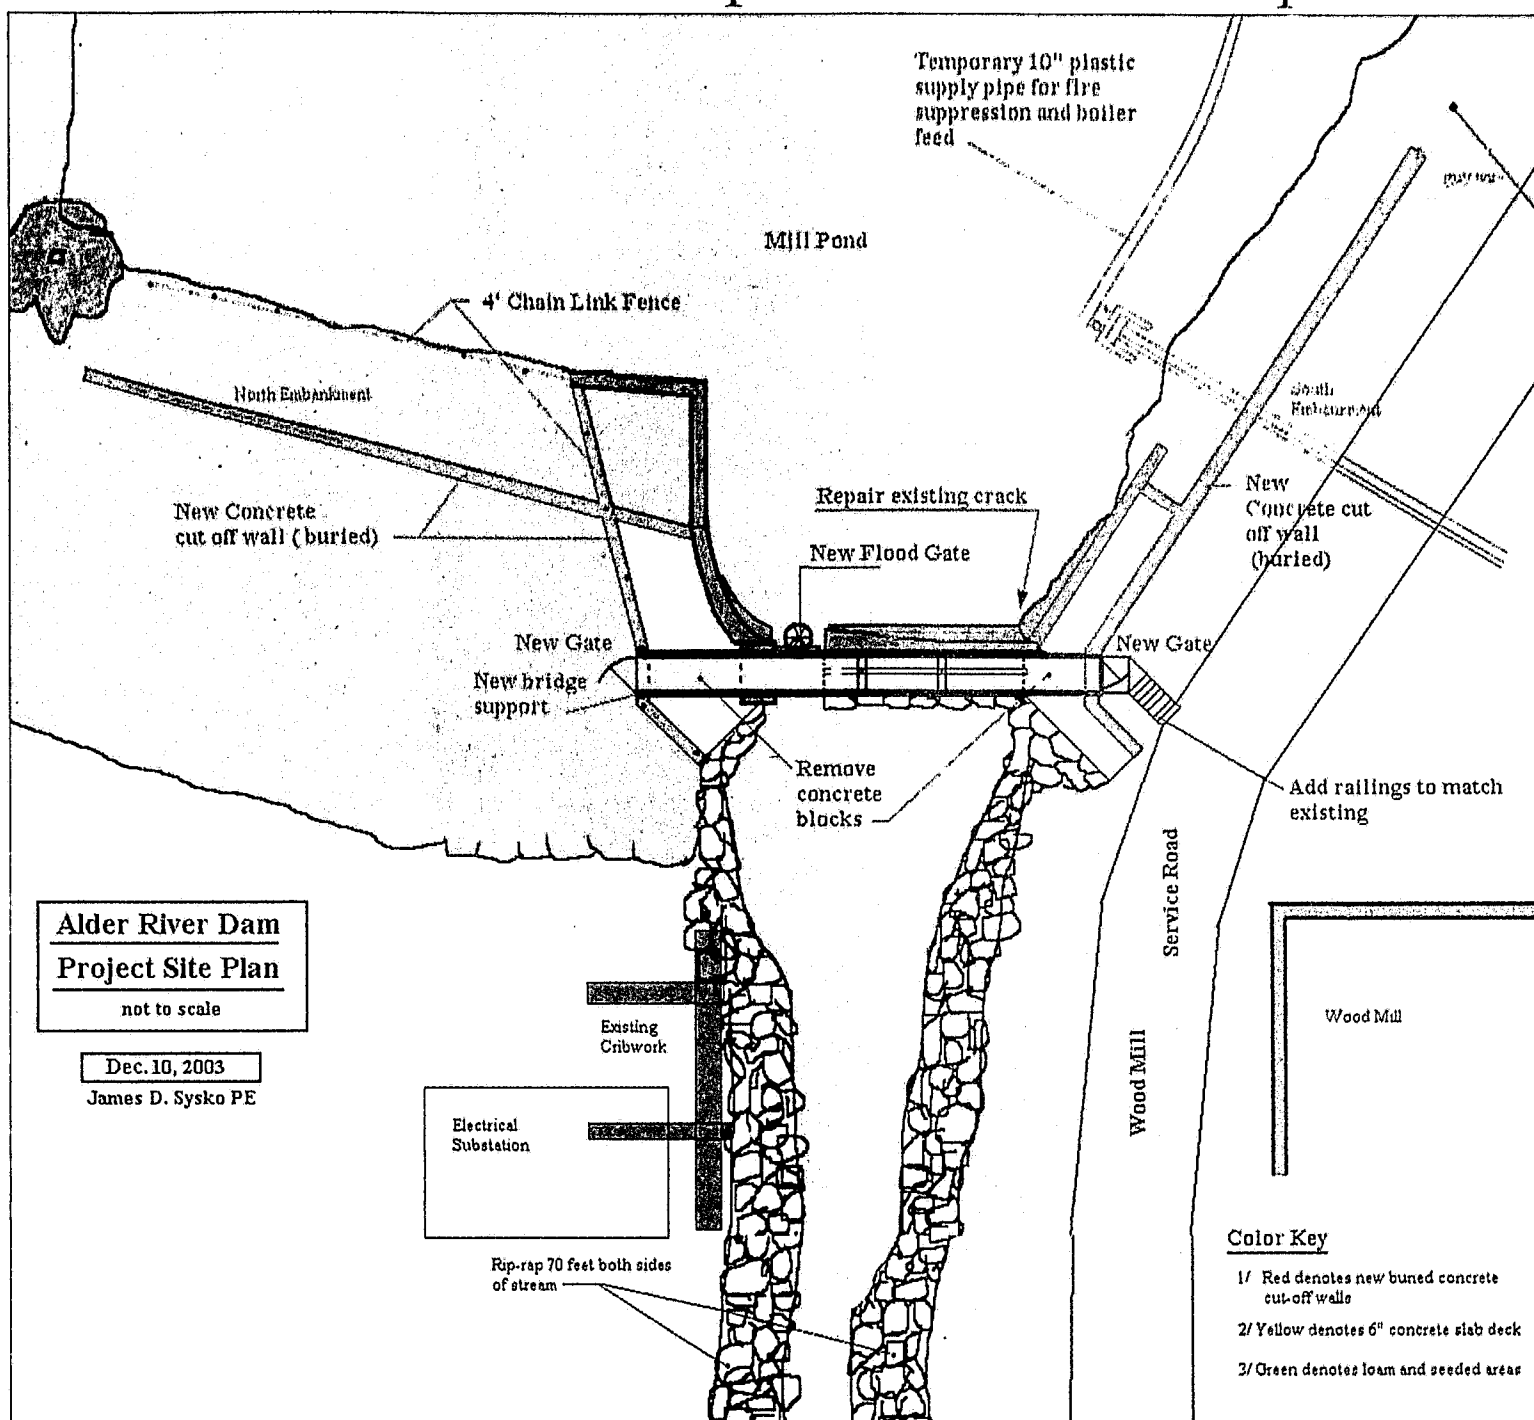

That application was denied by LURC staff, because it did not comply with minimum dimensional requirements.

The settlement agreement reached among DiGiovanni, LURC and the Maine Attorney General's office calls for him to pay the $3,000 civil penalty, to install an approved wastewater disposal system, and to reestablish and maintain a vegetative buffer in the cleared areas along the stream.

The agreement allows DiGiovanni to keep the camp in its current location, with

Locke Mills dam plan takes final shape

Engineer Jim Sysko presented the bidding plan for the rebuilding of the Alder River dam to Greenwood selectmen last week. Final tweaks to the plan included increasing the capacity of the spillways and the volume of water that can pass through the gate when it is opened. The bridge over the dam will be strengthened so that the span (currently 30 feet) can be extended to 40 feet, and the present wooden rail will be replaced with a steel rail. Riprap will be placed for 70 feet on both banks of the river below the dam. One uncertainty that remains is how deep the new concrete walls (red in plan) will have to be set. Test holes will need to be dug in order to determine the appropriate depth, Sysko told the selectmen. The project is expected to go to bid in about a week, with the work to take place in late summer or early fall.

New law helps clear the way for trail groomers

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The groomers are rolling, at least in Bethel, Greenwood and Woodstock.

Robert Lowell, trailmaster for the Bethel Snow Twisters, received word he was waiting for by fax Tuesday. His club and the Greenstock Snow Sports had secured the liability coverage that would allow them to begin grooming the 100-plus miles of local trails they maintain.

Lowell was out on the trail

'It's certainly a very big step toward fixing this thing.'

BOB MYER

Executive Director, Maine Snowmobile Association, on a new law extending liability protection for snowmobile clubs that evening, but the situation was hardly back to normal.

To get their Sno-cats grooming, the two local clubs spent $1,000 of their own money on a liability policy that will protect them for only two weeks.

After that, they're hoping a new law passed last week by the Maine Legislature will again make it possible for them to purchase affordable liability insurance to cover trail-grooming and maintenance activities.

Other clubs in the area have opted not to pay for the short-term fix.

Leon Dunn, trailmaster of the Windy Valley Snowmobile Club, was comfortable enough in the legal protection provided by the new law that he was out grooming Monday night and all day Tuesday.

But while he feels his club

Bethel, SAD44 info available on-line

By ALISON ALOISIO

Need to check how large a load of construction waste you can take to the Bethel transfer station? Get the e-mail address of your child's teacher? Check the SAD44 lunch menu or bus routes?

That information, and more, is available on Web sites sponsored by the town of Bethel and SAD44.

The Bethel site (www.bethelmaine.org) was launched several months ago, and is expected to evolve through "a slow and deliberate process," according to Town Manager Scott Cole.

For technical support, the town has retained the services of the Deximer technology company, located in Bethel, he said.

A variety of topics are covered on the town site. A page titled "Solid Waste and Recycling" provides details on the daily allowable quantities of various waste materials that may be brought to the Tri-Town Transfer Station.

A list of e-mail addresses for town personnel is also available, as are listings of committee members.

Other links simply refer questions on their subjects to the town's general e-mail address (info@bethelmaine.org), a particular staff person, or suggest a call to the Town Office.

District to hire 'technology integrator'

By ALISON ALOISIO

The SAD44 School Board laid the groundwork Monday to hire a "technology integrator," in the words of Supt. Dave Murphy.

Federal funds are already in place to pay for a technology curriculum support teacher, the formal title for the job, Murphy said. The board approved a job description for the position Monday.

Such a person would help teachers make good use of computer technology within the school curriculum, he said.

"I've heard teachers say we have 'great stuff' (technology), but their ability to use it is all over the place," Murphy said.

He said the two technology people currently on staff spend most of their time dealing with computer hardware, leaving little opportunity to educate teachers.

The new person (who Murphy believes will be heavily used) would be paid on the regular teachers' salary scale, with funding provided through the federal Title II and Title VI programs, he said.

He said he is not yet certain whether the position will be filled this year or next. The board is expected to discuss the timing in upcoming meetings.

High School midterms called off

By ALISON ALOISIO

Most of us have experienced them, and dreaded them — high school midterms and final exams. But thanks to the combination of Mother Nature and the need to comply with state Learning Results requirements, Telstar High School students are getting a reprieve from midterms.

The tests usually take place in January, at the end of the second quarter. Last week, principal Shawn Lambert sent out a letter to parents telling them:

"For a number of reasons, including the time we have lost due to storm days so far this year, as well as the continuing importance of common assessments and the work we have to do to prepare for those assessments, we will not be having midterm exams this year."

MINERAL AND GEM WORKSHOPS

To the Editor:

Do you have cabin fever? Do you have some mineral specimens around that you always wondered what they were? Are you interested in learning how stones are cut and polished to make jewelry?

Maybe you would like to make a pair of earrings, a bracelet or a necklace. Do you have a geode you always wanted to have sawed in half?

The Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association is holding a series of workshops at my home in Newry starting Sunday afternoon Jan. 18 from 2 to 4 p.m., and on every other Sunday: Feb 1, 15, 29, and March 7. For more information or directions call me at 824-2844.

PREPARING FOR SKI-A-THON

To the Editor:

Maine Handicapped Skiing has gotten off to a roaring start despite the bitter cold. Over 90 lessons have been taught since Jan. 5 at Sunday River Ski Resort, the Sunday River Inn and Cross Country Ski Center and Sugarloaf.

The 19th annual Ski-A-Thon, Maine Handicapped Skiing's yearly fundraiser and the largest one-day fundraiser in Maine, is scheduled for Saturday, March 20, 2004 at Sunday River Ski Resort and the X-C Ski Center.

Teams of five people raise a minimum of $600 in pledges to participate and get lots of great stuff for their efforts including free breakfast, lunch and dinner, a free lift or trail pass for the day, an event T-shirt, a goodie bag filled with Tom's of Maine products and a chance to win great prizes and incentives. One of the best ways to support Maine Handicapped Skiing and have a great time doing it is to get a team together.

Call MHS today at 824-2440 for details on the Ski-A-Thon. Thank you to the people of Bethel for supporting Maine Handicapped Skiing in so many ways.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

To the Editor:

Hello to everyone in Bethel. It has been just about eight months since my last letter to the editor but today's letter is much different than the last. I am so very grateful to all the supporters of the Bethel Police Department who voted last June to keep that Bethel Police Department in Bethel and not have the Oxford County Sheriff's Department come into the town and take over the job that my husband has had for 14 years. This letter is not just about thanking the townspeople for their support of the Bethel Police Department, but also for all the people who supported my husband and me last March and April while he was on administrative suspension from the town. Last spring was truly a test of a person's willingness to endure through the hardships. Ten months ago was an ultimate test of our strength as individuals and our strength as a couple. We were essentially newlyweds when he was suspended and those 33 days will leave a mark in our lives forever. But we made it through and we are stronger people for it now. Immediately after Darren was reinstated he had to go to work to ensure that the Bethel Police Department stayed in Bethel that it did not become Oxford County Sheriff's Department Northern Division. We had many sleepless nights believing that the department that he had worked so hard in for 14 years was going to be disbanded. Luckily the townspeople voted what was right and overwhelmingly sent a message to the powers that be that the Town of Bethel wants the Bethel Police Department and Darren Tripp. So thank you to everyone who supported us and the Bethel Police Department.

But, unfortunately, Darren and I are still unable to put the matter of the suspension and reinstatement behind us. We were left with no choice but to pay an attorney $5,000 retainer for legal services to assist Darren in getting his job back. The attorney eventually was paid a total of $6,900. The town manager paid nothing for the services of the town's attorney the entire time Darren was suspended. The taxpayers footed the bill for what was apparent to everyone as a personal vendetta against Darren. Many people have come up to both Darren and me and asked what happened and what was going on between Darren and Scott. Our only response was to say that we were unable to comment because our attorney advised us not to disclose any information. This answer seemed cold and it made Darren and I feel like there was something to hide. Some information was leaked to the press and there were numerous newspaper articles making insinuations about the facts of the case. Then there was the miffed mother-in-law who addressed the Board of Selectmen in a thoughtful written letter and still has not had any response to the questions that were raised. But that is the kind of apathy that the Board of Selectmen is portraying. In the town's policy and procedures, if the town manager is planning to suspend, dismiss, or terminate any department head then the Board of Selectmen must be notified. When Darren was suspended, a few board members stated that they were completely unaware that that action was going to occur. Either the town manager did not follow the policy of the town or the board members were lying. I guess either should be unacceptable to the people of Bethel.

And now again ten months later Darren and I are back to the sleepless nights. There is going to be serious disciplinary action taken against Darren on Jan. 16, for the incidents that occurred on Dec. 2, 2003. There was an armed robbery at the Big Apple on Railroad Street. Darren had been at court that morning and while he was in court he is not allowed to have his pager, cell phone or radio on. After he left the Rumford District Court, he returned to the town. He performed a traffic stop and then returned to the office to complete paperwork. He informed the dispatch that he would be at the office and they could contact him there if they needed anything. There was the robbery and the dispatch office attempted to contact Darren at the office and they received no answer on the telephone. The answering machine did not pick up and no one answered that telephone. The dispatch office then attempted to contact Darren on the radio several times while another dispatcher was calling the office telephone, our home phone, Darren's pager and cell phone. Finally dispatch called the Town Office and requested that someone go to Darren's office and tell him to call dispatch. The town office staff was aware of the dispatch inability to get in touch with Darren and they even were looking up the 10-code that the dispatcher used which indicated an armed robbery had occurred. They stated they knew that Darren was in the office because they had seen his car parked out front. This all took place in 12 minutes. When Darren informed me of the incident he was upset that the dispatch office was unable to reach him and he was concerned that there was something wrong with the telephones in the office or that the answering machine was broken and therefore that was the reason the dispatchers were not getting an answer. These actions are considered by some as grossly negligent and severely detrimental to the town's interest. If this is such a heinous act performed by the police chief then shouldn't the town manager immediately relieve him from his position? If Darren has performed a grossly negligent act then he should not continue in the present position. The town manager is giving Darren until Jan. 16 to respond to the "Concern for Job Performance" letter he received on Jan. 5, 2004. This letter was not drafted by the town manager alone. The town manager has advised the town's attorney of the incident.

This is costing the taxpayers many dollars per hour for a personal vendetta. Darren and I happen to be taxpayers of this town and we have had enough of our tax money paying the town's attorney to "stick it to Darren" every time the town manager wants to. I encourage each of the taxpayers of Bethel to be outraged at the fact that our tax money is being wasted by the town manager, and the Board of Selectmen are allowing him to do whatever he wants because they simply don't care to deal with the personnel issues.

When Darren was reinstated as the police chief the selectmen should have stepped in and appointed someone else Darren's direct supervisor. It was apparent then and still is apparent that the town manager cannot be an effective supervisor to someone he has been attempting to get rid of.

And so I simply have had enough. I grew up in this town. I went to school here, I am a member of the church, and I graduated from Telstar, and moved back to the community I love but I have had enough. If you also have had enough please speak up and let the elected officials know that this kind of action has gone on long enough and it is time for it to stop.

ARRESTED FOR SEXUAL ASSAULT

Brian S. Peterson, 38, of Bethel was arrested last Thursday following an investigation of a complaint of sexual assault from a 17-year-old female. According to the Bethel Police Chief Darren Tripp, upon questioning Peterson admitted to committing the action in question but maintained it was consensual. Peterson was charged with unlawful sexual contact (Class C felony), simple assault (Class D misdemeanor), two counts of disorderly conduct (Class E misdemeanor) and two counts of harassment (Class E misdemeanor). He was released on bail the same day, Tripp said.

In our back yard

A tradition of science and fun

For the past few weeks, many of Maine's birdwatchers have been tromping through the woods, scanning the fields and peering out from shorelines trying to tally up our bird population as part of the 104th annual Christmas Bird Counts (CBC). Sponsored by the National Audubon Society, the CBC has been called the oldest and largest wildlife survey in the world. It provides opportunities for veteran and beginner birders alike to spend time in the field and contribute to our scientific knowledge.

The Christmas Bird Counts got its start in 1900 when an ornithologist named Frank Chapman was upset by a traditional holiday event called the "side hunt." Teams of gunners would roam the countryside on Christmas Day shooting any wild animal they encountered. The team that shot the most birds and other small animals was the winner.

Chapman thought this was a bad tradition and organized a group of naturalists to try to identify and count birds instead of shooting them. Since that Christmas Day in 1900, the count has been held annually and has spread to many locations around the world. The count rules are quite simple. Each bird count is a circle 15 miles in diameter (approximately 177 square miles). Teams of bird counters try to cover as much of the area in a 24-hour calendar day and count each individual bird and species they see or hear in their part of the circle. At the end of the day, the counters meet and compile a master list and eliminate any double counting they suspect occurred.

The counts are conducted within the two-week period around Christmas. The data collected has been used to determine trends in wintering bird populations across the U.S. and Canada. (Visit the Audubon Web page www.audubon.org/bird/cbc/ to see the data and maps). Here in Maine there are now over 20 counts conducted annually, from York County to Presque Isle and Eastport to Misery Gore.

For the novice, going on a CBC with an experienced birder is a great way to start out. Because many of our birds have migrated south for the winter, there is a limited number of possible species to choose from, as you try to identify the little brown blob in the bush. The average number of species sighted is between 40 to 80, depending mostly on the amount of open water within the count circle. While this might seem like a high number, you probably see half that number every day without realizing it.

So dust off your binocular lenses, borrow a good field guide and start identifying the flying feathered creatures this winter in your back yard. By the time the 105th Christmas Bird Counts start next December, you'll be ready to be a part of this tradition of science and fun.

WATERFORD — The Planning Board has approved a proposal from Ed Keiser to establish a manufactured housing operation in the Sanborn Machine building on Route 37. The property was owned by Merrimack Timber Service Inc., of Epson, N.H. Keiser said he would employ between 35 and 40 full-time people in his plant.

Deal to buy Crested Butte

LUDLOW, Vt. — The owners of Okemo Mountain Resort have taken the next big step toward expanding their holdings to include Crested Butte Ski Resort in Colorado. Timothy Mueller, president of Triple Peaks LLC and Okemo Mountain, said Wednesday he had signed a purchase and sales agreement to buy the southwestern Colorado resort. Mueller said he expected the closing would be completed in early to mid-February. The Muellers — Timothy and his wife, Diane — are buying Crested Butte from the Callaway and Walton families, who have owned the resort for 33 years. The Muellers signed a letter of intent in late October, beating out a real estate development firm headed by former football great Roger Staubach. Triple Peaks LLC was formed by the Muellers two years ago when they were on the verge of buying another Colorado resort, Steamboat Springs, from American Skiing Co. That deal fell through, and ASC instead sold another one of its ski areas to a different ski company. Okemo is now suing ASC for acting in bad faith and breach of contract over the failed Steamboat deal. The deal fell apart at the 11th hour, while Mueller and his attorneys were at ASC's attorneys' offices in New York City. "Anything can happen, up until closing," Mueller said. Then he added, about Crested Butte: "But it's a definite agreement, and there's still a couple of contingencies on our side."

Man killed when logs spill

TOWNSHIP 5 RANGE 9 — A Houlton man was killed last week when an oncoming logging truck spilled a load of logs into his path. Maine State Police identified the victim as Tony Jay, 29. Jay was driving a minivan on Route 11 north of Brownville when the accident occurred, according to Maine State Police dispatcher Phil Moody. Moody said the truck driver, Cleveland Richardson of Wytopitlock, apparently overcorrected his truck for an oncoming vehicle, causing the logs to spill into the road. The accident is still under investigation.

Snowboarder killed at Loon

LINCOLN, N.H. — A 21-year-old Hudson man died last week after a snowboarding fall at Loon Mountain. Louis Cecere died at Dartmouth Hitchcock Medical Center after more than two days on life support. Cecere was snowboarding with two friends when he went over a jump and landed on his head. "The board hit first, and it immediately caught the edge," said Scott Selfridge, one of his friends. "It threw him into the trail." Cecere's family still has the helmet he was wearing. They said it was only the second time he had worn one in 10 years on the slopes. The Ceceres said they believe the death could have been prevented if the jump was built differently, saying the landing area essentially forced Cecere into a fall. Loon Mountain said the accident is under investigation.

Cell phone service spotty

PORTLAND — In the last two years, the number of cell phones in Maine has grown from 200,000 to 500,000. But users say they have not noticed an improvement in service or an increase in coverage. Phones still cannot be used in large sections of the state, and coverage is spotty for users who stray away from urban areas or major highways. Cell phone companies admit they are concentrating on larger markets and coverage will lag in New England's less densely populated states. Although the Federal Communications Commission issues licenses to carriers with the condition that they eventually support 100 percent of the U.S. population, total coverage is decades away, said Richard Enright, director of network engineering for New England at Verizon Wireless. Martin Nee, communications director at AT&T Wireless, said part of the problem is that carriers meet resistance when trying to erect more cell phone towers from communities concerned about aesthetics and historic structures.

New time, location for market

NORWAY — The 2004 Norway Farmers Market will offer area residents better shopping times, a more convenient location, and an expanded selection of fresh, local products to purchase. Recently market members voted to change their market day to Thursdays, from 2 to 6 p.m., with opening day set for May 20. The market will relocate to L. M. Longley's parking lot on Deering Street. The market offers fresh vegetables, fruits, flowers, dairy products, eggs, herbs, and maple products. New members Dan Perron of Sumner Valley Farms, producing organic pork and chicken, and Allison Rosenblatt of the Delicious Baking Company, providing a variety of homemade pies, cakes, cookies and bars, join the market this year.

The winds blew snow that had fallen Tuesday across roads, leading to several sliding accidents and rollovers, including in the parking lot of the Mallard Mart in West Paris.

No serious injuries were reported.

Today (Thursday) was forecast to be somewhat colder, with the deep freeze expected to moderate this weekend.

Groomers

is now covered as far as accidents on the trails it maintains, he knows the potential liability situation is less clear if another snowmobiler has an accident involving a grooming machine.

"We're not covered on the Tucker [groomer]," he said.

Nonetheless his club, like many others, has opted not to pay the steep premium for two weeks of such coverage.

These clubs are banking on that coverage soon being available at a more affordable rate, through either individual insurers or through the Maine Snowmobile Association.

Bob Myers, MSA's executive director, said Tuesday that a consultant hired by the organization has been negotiating with two insurers and expected to report back "any day now" with a proposal for pooled coverage.

"This would be pooled liability coverage for our clubs for grooming and trail maintenance liability only. The instant we have it, we will be sending it out to the clubs," Myers said.

Myers said he had no idea what the cost would be, but "presumably it's going to be fairly reasonable."

Dunn said: "That's what we're waiting for."

Bill was a first

The bill that appears to have made the insurance companies comfortable once again in writing such coverage was the first passed in this Legislative session.

It sailed through both the House and Senate unanimously on last Thursday and was signed into law by Gov. Baldacci on Friday.

As emergency legislation, the bill took effect immediately.

The bill itself does not provide insurance coverage for the clubs. What it does do is extend to snowmobile clubs the same protection that is provided to landowners by Maine's Landowner Liability Law.

That law protects landowners from lawsuits resulting from the use of their lands for recreation or harvesting.

Under the new law, snowmobile clubs, like landowners, cannot be held liable if someone gets injured on a trail, unless the club or landowner deliberately created the conditions with the intent to cause harm.

This explicit protection in effect limits the financial exposure of the companies writing insurance for snowmobile clubs.

In the year prior to the bill becoming law, insurance rates for clubs had risen by as much as 400 percent, forcing many clubs to discontinue trail grooming and maintenance.

Midterms

The district had called three storm days before the holiday vacation, putting classes behind schedule.

So to make up the lost time, classes will be held as usual, incorporating "end-of-the-quarter/semester activities," Lambert wrote.

He said Tuesday that not all teachers have been in the habit of giving midterms anyway, so some classes will not be affected by the change.

During the same time period, Lambert said, teachers will continue to "develop common assessments and a system to have students complete them."

The state is requiring that school systems create local comprehensive assessment systems to determine if students are achieving specific goals set out by Maine's Learning Results.

For example, the assessments could take the form of a combination of portfolios and various test results, possibly including the Maine Educational Assessment test, he said.

In the spring, a group of about seven Telstar educators, including curriculum coordinator Lee Graham, will work further on a plan, possibly implementing "at least part of the plan in place of what has traditionally been done during finals," Lambert said.

He said it's possible the new assessments could eventually displace some of the regular class testing.

Brad and Dianne Smith have returned from a family visit in Florida.

Lee and Al Barth have returned after spending Christmas in Chicago visiting her daughter and husband and two granddaughters.

Sharon Erickson and daughter, Jacquelin, of Kingston, Mass., visited with Brad and Dianne Smith. They brought their new grand-dog, Collie, 12 weeks old.

Gene and Ginger Kelly spent ten days visiting their oldest daughter, Chris and family, in Oregon.

The Congregational Women's group met for their annual dinner at the Philbrook Farm Inn on Wednesday, Jan. 7. They have been doing this for 25 years.

Charles Blake is in rehab at Ledgeview Nursing home after a fall at his home. He has had a stroke since being there.

Oxford Hills Duplicate Bridge met Friday, Jan. 9, at the Fare Share Food Coop. Winners for the morning were: Woodrow Mercer and Pete Cummings; David Lock and Jeanine Kivus; Nancy Farmer and Don Johnson; Bev Dolan and Jim Dickens. The weather did not deter players from braving the sub-zero temperatures for a warm and friendly game of bridge.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte

The frigid below-zero temperatures did not deter the members of the State Line Snow Mobile Club from completing a long-planned project. Joe Bernier, Dick Angevine, Harold Hibbard, Bob Folsom and Larry Bonney built a snowmobile bridge from scratch at the Popple Dam site. These men and other members have been hard at work clearing trails, enabling riders access to some wonderful locations. They also have acquired permission from landowners for snowmobilers to trail through private land. They deserve a lot of credit for their accomplishments.

Our temperatures in Upton dipped down below zero all over town on Saturday and Sunday. Al Gagnon winced as he read 33 below on his thermometer. As if that wasn't bad enough, he experienced serious furnace problems during the night. He was not a happy camper, pushing the wood and fixing an uncooperative furnace.

It snows a little bit every night. It keeps our snow pristine and white. I believe the flu isn't the only bug ailing the populace. Cabin fever is making inroads.

Jennifer Casey has returned from a work-related trip to Colorado. We were colder than the Rockies; heck we were colder than Donner Pass.

Because we do not travel at night we will miss the Jan. 14 presentation at Bingham Hall, Gould Academy, on "Corvus corax," the common raven, by Bernd Heinrich. I read one of his books on crows and it was interesting and very informative. Matinee presentations would be wonderful for "out-of-towners" and seniors. The Bethel Senior Citizens might work on this. Thank you to Frank Vogt for bringing this program to our attention.

Sue Angevine is having a slow recovery from the flu bug. We hope she is up and at 'em soon.

Our night visitor to the porch returned with a vengeance last week. The "Boss," that huge buck, opened the screen door and helped himself to a hearty feed, right from the grain bag. He ignored me when I banged on the window. How he opened the door is a mystery, because it opens out. His exit was just the opposite. Shooing him toward the porch door was received with an insolent stare. A good slam on the house door really reached him. He is very old but he looked quite fit as he sped down the porch toward the lake. With one giant flying leap over the porch rail and through the screens he escaped. He didn't stop running until he reached Birch Point. The next morning, like a bad penny, he was back, peering through the kitchen window as he dined at the window birdfeeder. He may have won the porch battle, but this is war. My birds have first "divs" on that feeder. The "Bird of the Week" is the White Tailed Deer.

Now that our snow has settled enough that I can maneuver my Kubota tractor, I decided to cut some wood, both for next year's firewood and, hopefully, enough mill wood to make a truckload for sale. I have quite a few white birch trees within sight of the paved road, but I'm finding defects that preclude using much of them for mill wood (too crooked, too knotty, or rotten hearted). Some people I know have those same defects.

Last Saturday, I decided to cut three good size ash trees growing along my upper driveway. The biggest tree leaned somewhat toward the driveway, but I figured I could push it over with my Kubota once I had notched it and sawed it almost all the way off. Wrong. The tree sagged toward the driveway and our electric power line to the house, and the Kubota could not move it, even using the winch. Swallowing my pride, I phoned Jack Cross. Luckily, he had a truck and excavator already warmed up. He sent Marshall Fleet up, and he quickly pushed over the "leanin' tree." What a relief. Now I don't have to see our electric power service line ripped off the house.

With all the colds and flu going around, I feel lucky that the worst I've suffered so far is a sore throat, which is now gone. Mona spent a couple days in bed last week with what seemed like flu, except there was no fever. A phone call to our physician resulted in a recommendation that she take Tylenol every four hours, drink Gatorade and bouillon and no dairy products for a couple weeks. To this, Mona added time release Dimetapp for stuffiness. She pulled through and is now fine. Mona's granddaughter, Monica, went through a similar bout with "the croup," as have numerous folks that we've heard about. Hopefully, this frigid weather will kill off the flu virus, and our epidemic will come to a frozen end. Go Pats.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke

Greetings and hello from Albany Township. The news seems to be the Arctic weather we have been feeling this past week. The temperature got down to 20 below in some areas of Albany. We heard of some water freezing at homes, but, fortunately, nothing too terribly serious. We hope that everyone is managing to keep warm and that there is very little freezing. Of course, the weather stations are just calling for more of the same deep freeze for this week, with a break on the weekend.

News on Faith Waterman: She and her mother are in Pennsylvania under a doctor's care and the watchful eyes of not only the treating physicians and their staff, but grandparents as well. Prayer is proving to be a most powerful tool in the healing of this littlest one, who has not even seen the light of day yet.

This coming Sunday is the third Sunday of the month, and, therefore, after services (which start at 9:30 a.m.) the Albany Congregational Church invites you to their Fellowship, which is meeting and visiting with others and enjoying goodies.

The road crew of Hatstat is doing a great job keeping the roads clear of snow and ice this winter. Now that we are at the top of the hill, we really appreciate the efforts they go to to keep the roads as safe as possible.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week. God Bless and Keep.

Gilead

by Elise Caswell

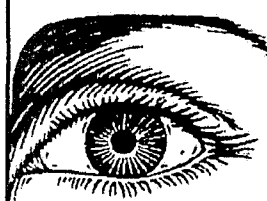

Boy you know it's cold when you invite your next-door neighbor to dinner and they arrive in their family vehicle. Though it's not unusual to be miles away from your nearest neighbor here in Gilead, the Katlins live yards away. Martha and Donnie weren't taking any chances and Jewel and Rolie live far enough away to drive no matter what the weather. It's natural for the weather to be the hot topic of conversation. Already, water flow has stopped for some folks and Stephen's been suspended from his snow pro work for a second-degree case of frostbite. Once bit, as he was years ago, your tissues are inclined to forget to tell you what's happening because they are already damaged. We were heating up the soup, talking about the heart benefits of cayenne pepper when Stephen bared his foot for all to see.

There must be some natural remedy for frostbite. There seems to be a plant for every possible ailment. I have a well-stocked herbal apothecary right in my kitchen, but I often forget to look. I took an apprenticeship two years ago and I'm great at collecting and preserving. I just forget what it's all for. Jewel made a quick call to Wendy up at the farm and before any time passed, we had several herbal remedies for frostbite, and darned if I didn't have them all on hand. It's embarrassing how little I've retained though I'm continually amazed at how vast the information about medicinal plants. Once you open the door to learning about local plant talents, you embark on an endless journey.

Cayenne pepper came up as a suggested foot soak. Ever notice how one thing will pop up over and over again to say, "Hey, pay attention to me?" In the deepest, meanest cold of January, up jumps cayenne pepper to be noticed and appreciated. Leave it to the coldest cold to bring out the hottest hot. These happy little patterns in life make me think there is some mega plan that when given the perspective to see it, actually makes every little thing make sense, or at least gives meaning to the details. We all stood in a circle contemplating Stephen's big toe one frigid Saturday night in January. It only took a few moments and yet the bitter chill that underlined a small supper for friends had a huge impact. Like the warming, stimulating cayenne pepper, the whole area here on the Bog Road felt warmer. Circulation is moving, and where blood flows, messages are getting through. Can the complexity of life really have such simple answers? Is it possible for a small gathering of folks to send far-reaching ripples

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

How cold has it been? Pretty gosh darn excruciatingly cold. I'm sure, in fact I know, there have been times when it has been colder, but that was when- ever and this is now. Because I have survived colder temperatures in years gone by that I can't even remember does little to warm my soul now.

Dress in layers is the advice of the cold weather experts. Good advice I say. Right now I am wearing two pairs of thermal socks, long johns, sweat pants, jeans, a turtleneck, a fleece pullover and a sweat-shirt. I am definitely warmer, but I really can't move around the house very well. I can only imagine when I put on a few more layers to go outside how I'll look waddling to the car.

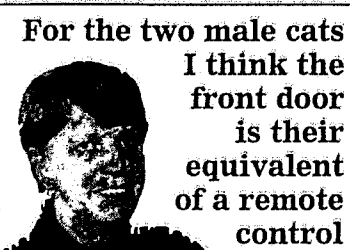

I watched the Patriots (Go Pats!) game Saturday night, now known as the "Chill Bowl", the wind-chill factor was -10 and the stands were packed with fans. There was no doubt how many layers of clothing these folks had on. They all walked like ducks or penguins whenever they left their seats to go to the bathroom or where ever.

I bet they were hoping that nature didn't call them too frequently. There is nothing worse than having to go to the bathroom very badly and having to remove many layers of clothing to do so. Some of those fans that I observed seem to be wearing big coats over one-piece snowmobile suits over several other layers of clothing. That's a heck of a lot of stuff to remove just to relieve oneself. I think if it had been me I would have opted for Depends.

But it wouldn't have been me even if I had tickets because when it's so cold that my cats won't go outside, neither will I. And the cats will not go out unless enticed to do so with a firm foot to their butts. Before you call the SPCA on me for cruelty to animals, let me explain that I really don't make them go out nor do they get my foot in their butts, at least not very often.

They think they want to go out though and will sit in front of the door meowing. One cat actually will run out when I open the door, he'll sniff the frigid air and turn around and run right back in. I'm sure his nostrils stick together when he does that little sniff and that's enough to let him know he's had all the fresh air he cares to have. As he runs by me on his way back into the house he always gives me a look that says, "That was invigorating, but I'm invigorated enough."

My big fat useless "I think I'm king of the house" cat will merely take a cursory glance outside and look at me as if to say, "You've got to be kidding if you think I'm going out there in that cold!" Then he will flick his tail and go curl up in my husband's favorite chair.

For the two male cats I think the front door is their equivalent of a remote control

I know how he feels because I feel the same way, only I know that my husband's favorite chair is off limits.

My only other cat is a small female who doesn't even pretend that she wants to go outside when it's cold. She finds a remote corner of the house, preferably a clothing drawer that is open just enough for her to get in. She will curl up and get cozy in there coming out only when she hears the distinctive sound of cat food being put in her bowl or her kitty litter calls to her.

I think she shows a lot of good common sense. Her idea of a good day seems to be to get comfortable and only moving when there is a darn good reason. That's exactly the way I see it. Females are so much smarter than males.

For the two male cats I think the front door is their equivalent of a remote control. Have someone open the door so they can look out, close the door and do the same thing again in 10 or 15 minutes. It's like they think it will eventually get better and then they'll show me just how tough they are. That is so like a man.

I couldn't help but to notice during the Patriot's "Chill Bowl" a good many of the players were wearing short sleeve jerseys to show how tough they were. That was just plain stupid. They have long sleeve jerseys and baring their arms won't prove a gosh darn thing. One team will win and one will loose no matter what they wear. They think they'll freak out the other team if they're tough enough to go bare armed in minus 10 weather, but most of the guys on the other team went bare armed too, so what did that prove? Besides, let's face it, they could all be wearing grass skirts and teddies and the game is still going to go pretty much the same way.

The fans didn't need to show how tough they were, male or female, everyone in the stands was bundled up in multi-layered clothing, ski masks, scarves, whatever it took to stay warm. Even the guys in the animal section didn't try to bare their chests to show off their hairy painted Patriot's logos, or Flying Elvis as it is sometimes called.

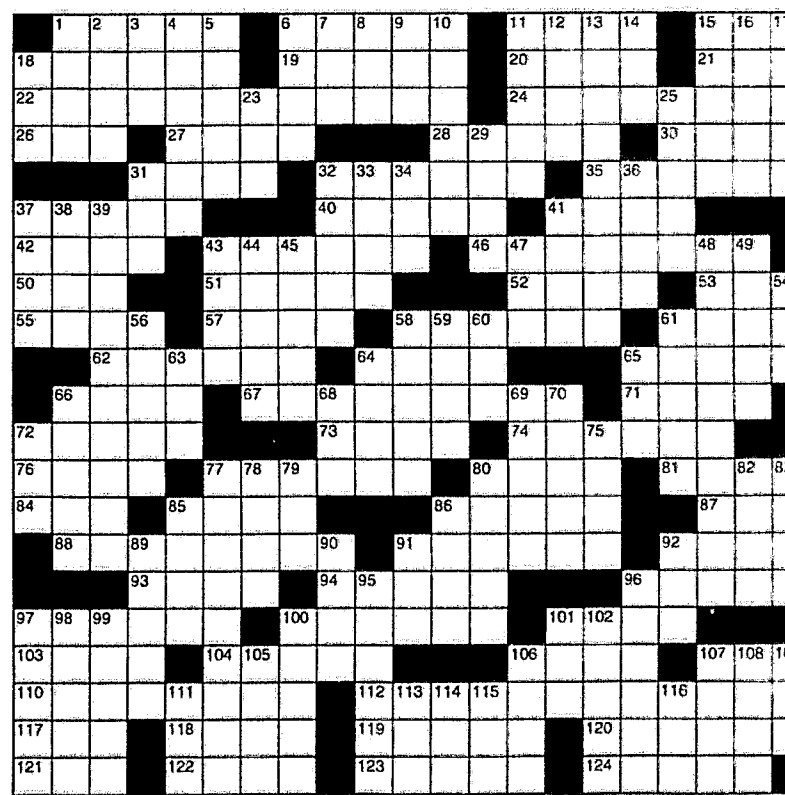

We were rewarded with a few days of 20 degrees and now the severe cold is back worse than it was last week. It is so cold that all the red barns in the area are turning blue. Just kidding of course, but it really is cold and my cats are refusing to go out again.

The Patriots are scheduled to play in "Chill Bowl II" on Sunday and my male cats are scheduled to cry at the door, and not go out and the way I see it, as long as I dress in many layers of clothing I'll be ready to deal with both.

I really don't have too much news this week. I guess the weather has kept everyone in and if you don't have to go out that is a good place to be — in. This winter is really getting under my skin. I really don't know why, as I usually like winter. Could it be I am getting old, perish the thought.

I do know that I have many more stiff and achy places than I used to, one of them being my feet. Since I am not on them that much one would think they would not bother, but they do.

Bright sunshine, wind blowing and 2 degrees at noon Friday and we have not been outside yet today. The furnace is purring in the basement and we are warm. Beef stew is on the menu for tonight. The walking group has agreed that we will not walk if the temperature is below zero degrees and the wind is blowing. So at -22 degrees we all stayed at home.

On Jan. 18 at the West Paris Universalist Church, the Rev. Joy Gasta will have as her sermon, "Part 1, For Martin Luther King Day: Jesus and Others Who Thought Up the Golden Rule, We Remember How Hard It Is To Do Unto Others As You Would Have Them To Do Unto You." Coffee hour follows. Jim Burke is organist.

Vince Stevens and friends were snowmobiling in Rangeley this week. There is more snow there than here.

Beryl Bonney and I were in Auburn Wednesday to shop. I had to exchange the drapery pole for the sliding glass door for a longer one. The large hardware store there is fascinating, even for a female. I spent more time exploring there than in Penney's. The insulating drape is now up, keeping the cold out. We did get a few groceries and ended the day out with seafood chowder and a large hot fudge sundae.

The temperature and wind are too much for Buffy this week. He goes to the door but refuses to venture out. He spends most of his time in his basket or on my bed. He is hibernating for the month.

Brrr. Well folks, after taking one horrified look at that thermometer and seeing -20 degrees early this a.m.,

I stoked the woodstove up real good and went back to bed for a few more zzz's. Too cold for these old bones. That -20 degrees did not include the wind chill factor. Guess I don't even want to go there. Expect that would equal another 10 degrees, so it would be just about -30 degrees with that figured in.

Our most sincere condolences go out this week to the family of Marjorie Coulombe of Rumford. Her daughter, Sheila Delameter and husband, Roland, own and operate the Enchanted Florist here in West Paris.

Marjorie also had six sons, Gerard, Robert, David, Vito Jr., Michael and Chester, 10 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters. She will be much missed by all her family and friends.

Our most sincere condolences also go out to the family of Niilo Suomela of Buckfield. He leaves his wife of 65 years, Eleanor, a daughter, Janet Compton and her husband, David, and granddaughter Kirsti, a sister-in-law, Laila Suomela, and several nephews.

He was a master craftsman making beautiful furniture. He was a humble and honest man.

He was a member of the Finnish-American Heritage Society of Maine and the First Congregational Church of South Paris. We all shall miss him.

Our most sincere condolences go out to the family of Bruce Thurlow. He worked at Schiavi's in Oxford. He leaves his parents, Leslie and Patricia (Baker) Thurlow, his wife, Kathleen, and a daughter, Tina Marie Hall, two sisters, Leslie and Lisa, and a brother, Mark. It seems we have lost a lot of good friends lately.

Our sincere condolences also go out to the family of Abigail Buswell of Bethel,

TREED
Driver Stephen Wentworth of Bridgton escaped injury Monday morning when his pickup truck slid into a snowbank on Route 2 and flipped, coming to rest against a tree, according to Police Chief Darren Tripp. Wentworth, 59, was westbound near Bethel Auto Sales when the accident happened. The 2002 Ford pickup was totaled, Tripp said. Wentworth was wearing a seatbelt. It was one of several accidents in the area that were caused by the slippery conditions. There were no serious injuries reported.

Andover

by Joan Stinson-Carney

This is a sad time for the Town of Andover. One of our more beloved citizens, Rex Thurston, has died. Rex had quite a battle with A.L.S. Our thoughts and prayers are with his wife, Merrilee, his sons and their families, his brothers, and his many, many friends. He was a wonderful, caring person and will be greatly missed by all of us who had the privilege to know him.

Andover resident Charlie Jaros has been going through a bad time health wise. Cards would be nice.

The fifth grade of the AES is still trying to have a bottle drive, but because of weather conditions it has had to be cancelled twice; the new date is Saturday, Jan. 31. Let's hope Mother Nature is a little more cooperative then.

I'm not going to waste too much time complaining about the weather; what good does it do; but I have a story to tell you and you can believe it or not. Last week I worked down at The Inn at Evergreen in Stoneham, and when I went out Saturday to come home, of course my car wouldn't start. It finally started on Sunday morning, but I rode all the way home with the engine light on. Needless to say, I was a nervous wreck. I kept expecting the car to explode or something else to happen, and guess what, it did. Now comes the weird part. As I was going by the cemetery in Bethel, you know the one past Songo Pond, all of a sudden the passenger side door opened.

Now I still don't know if somebody (thing) got out or somebody (thing) got in, but let me tell you I hate the thoughts of having to go by that cemetery again this week.

News from Mrs. Nieberle: Happy New Year. Last week she attended church with Dot Cushman and her family at the Union Church. The only people she knew were Joyce and Willie Hathaway. Joyce sang in the choir. There was a very interesting young man that gave a presentation of how his group goes to countries to teach about Jesus.

Ruth Feeney said her house on Route 232 is coming along and she has been pleased with the results so far. Ruth is the leader of the Soup and Ski Program at Sunday River Inn and Cross Country Ski Center. She welcomes not only skiers but also snowshoers. The program started Jan. 7. It is from 10 to noon and then you have soup for lunch. Both men and women are welcome. It was some Bryant Pond residents that asked about snowshoeing with the group.

The Nieberles attended a birthday party in Oxford and met Trudy Cummings. She is the sister of Diane Gaudreau. They look very much alike. Trudy is married to Steve Hazelton and has a daughter, Lynn.

Mrs. Nieberle went to see the movie, "Cheaper by the Dozen," with her grandchildren. They and everyone in the theater had a good laugh — a funny family movie.

The Woodstock Extension will meet Wednesday at the Town Annex. A tasting party will be held. The program will be on food mood links.

The Historical Society Museum offers the very best. It reflects the spirit of the area well. Society members show visitors all the hospitality they can. They want everyone to feel comfortable and enjoy the museum and exhibits thoroughly. Don't underestimate the dedication to your welfare.

Curator Larry Billings has been getting copies of favorite photos and articles in case something happens to the originals. Isn't it wonderful that there is technology to make nearly perfect copies. He has two prints of Queen Elizabeth I. She is his favorite historical person.

Larry has been trying out some recipes with mixed results. He is also progressing nicely with his annual reading of the Bible. He views it as great literature as well as Holy Scripture. The society's collections are very inclusive. A bit of everything appears in the museum. This great variety really astounds people. That one place offers so much.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

Cold enough! With outside temperatures dropping to the minus 20 degree readings and daytime highs only getting to minus 10 degrees, folks have had enough. One old fellow who works in an auto parts store once said two things are good for auto parts sales — hot weather and cold weather. A beer delivery truck broke down in Hanover one day and was rescued by MT Pockets. One young lady started her car to let it warm up and a few minutes later found the car nicely warmed up but with the keys locked inside. That time it was Duke's Auto Sales that accomplished the remedy. Then there is always an old skidder way off on a mountain where it stalled out and is probably frozen to the hillside.

About half of the Hanover dog owners missed the Dec. 31 deadline for licenses. Hanover officials suggest getting it done before Jan. 31, because there will be an additional $15 penalty added to each dog licensed after that.

During the wet weather that caused the flooding in December, a sinkhole developed in the travel lane on the Howard Pond Road just north of The Ledges. The heavy trucks have been asked to avoid that area when the ground is not frozen until repairs can be made.

Last week, Donna and Clem Worcester, Craig Turner, Freeman Farrington and Danny Bennett traveled to Brunswick for a Knights of Pythias meeting and social event at Fort George Lodge. Everyone had a good time despite the ice storm that day.

Walter and Laurie Curtis visited me on Monday to see about fixing my broken chair. Hi readers. Here I am again. Happy New Year. What will it bring? Good things I hope.

Thelma Dadmun is still in the Maine Medical Center Hospital in Portland. She's on the ninth floor, where Frances Grant was last year at this time of year. Frances came a long way of healing and hope you get better soon, too, Thelma.

Mary Grover is spending some time with her daughter,

Peggy, at Boothbay. We will miss you, Mary.

Eleanor Smith has moved from Waterford Acres to Norway. I haven't gotten her address or phone number, but will do so soon.

The weather looks nice out today, sunny but cold and they say it is going to get colder and colder by the end of this week.

Gail Butterfield is having a session with bronchitis.

Arthur Gouin is feeling better now after his surgery.

My blood sugar is way high and will have to do something about that. How are all of you people? I hope you are doing better than us.

As of right now, the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19 plan to meet at the Stoneham Community Room at the Fire Station on Wednesday, Jan. 28 at 7 p.m. There will be small exchange of gifts and light refreshments after the meeting. We have had our share of sicknesses and bad weather. Please stay well and try to attend.

Happy Birthday also to my sister, Cindy, on Jan. 4.

It has been quite the week. It is amazing when 24 degrees feels like a heat wave, but it did this week. I guess after being 13 below, even 13 above would feel warm, and we had 24-29 on Monday. On top of that it was sunny. What a treat. Tasha has been a real trouper. When it is time to go out, she does not care what the temperature is, she wants to go out. She even chooses to stay out for long periods of time. I do not feel guilty leaving her out while I'm at work, because that would be her choice anyway. Not that she is all good these days. Given half a chance, she took off the other day and went to visit that pesky black dog, Matt, who always visits and bothers her. They did not fight, but I had to go and get her. She needs a big pasture to run around in.

After freezing on Saturday, I realized that I had no choice but to buy new boots. Mine are five or six years old, at least, and the internal lining is a little worn. I can only wear one pair of socks with them so my feet were like bricks, cold bricks. It is hard to walk on bricks. So I got out the piece of green plastic and off we went. It was not easy to find warm boots in small sizes, but finally we did. I hope they work. I hope everyone else has warm boots, too.

Am still suffering from whatever virus is going around. Maybe I have several viruses (is it viruses or virus?) Any Latin scholars out there? They didn't teach it when I was in school. The spellchecker doesn't know either.

Coming up this week, and next, we have:

1. Oxford County Democrats have a training session for the caucuses on Thursday, Jan. 22, at the South Paris Town Office. Snow date will be Jan. 23. FMI call Cathy Newell at 875-2116.

2. Art Moves Dance Studio will have a kickoff performance on Jan. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

at OHCHS.

3. Community Potluck Supper will be held at Wilkins Community House on Plummer Hill in Waterford on Thursday, Jan. 15. That is at 6 p.m. Bring a main dish or salad and a friend. Apple crisp will be provided.

Although it is not supposed to snow till tonight (Tuesday), it is snowing early. What else is new? I am off to check the stove preparations and to prepare for a tutoring session. Have a great week and stay warm.
